REVIEWS:

Comforting as hugging a beloved stuffed animal.

... about the unconditional love of a stuffed animal[, Teddy Let's Go!] will provide reassurance for anyone outgrowing a comfort object. Kazemi's illustrations are tenderly rendered in pencil and soft, smudgy pastel and rely on a mix of panels and spreads; these cozy scenes will hold the attention of even the youngest readers.

—Kirkus Reviews

"In this book told from a stuffed bear's point of view, ... the illustrations have an appropriately dreamlike quality... Particularly helpful to families helping older children adapt to the arrival of a sibling."

—Booklist

Michelle Nott's lyrical book of love and friendship between a teddy and a child is imbued with love. Told from the unique point-of-view of a teddy bear, made lovingly by grandmother, and gifted to a newborn baby girl, the teddy and girl grow to become inseparable friends.

There are so many layers woven into this tender story. Nahid Kazemi's illustrations emanate with warmth and nostalgia. The unexpectedly beautiful twist at the end moved me to tears. This poignant story already reads like the enduring classic it is sure to become.

This is a beautiful book that young children - and parents - will definitely relate to. It touched my heart [...] I love that author Nott shows us how kindness and compassion can be practiced by young children - and the glorious illustrations of Nahid Kazemi will keep readers and listeners engaged and turning the beautiful pages of this wonderful story.
